

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. We were receiving an average of 10-15 calls per week & have only received 1 call since signing on to the no-call list. After telling the caller that we're on the no-call list, she immediately disconnected the call. This is very important to us as we feel we have a right to our privacy. Without Indiana's Telephone Privacy protection, we would lose that right. Would that be fair? We don't think so! Thank you.
